“Things change” , this is wht “ADMIRAL” refer to chinsese. Obvously, we should always do our best to stay cometiive in the market.

Howevwr, things never change, too. They are something we call origin and should always keep it in mind.

"Balance, is a situation in which all the different parts are equal in quantity, and eventually establishing a coordination between each geometry." "We' re all in a new century which is full of opportunities and challenges, so we must keep innovation and change to keep up with the market. However, customers' demands are always our first priority and we will definitely keep in mind and never change."

How do we balance these two concepts, change and never change, in a chair?
